

distance = radius; angle only separates the 6 points for readability (does not represent true bearing)

